

ABSTRACT

Fransisca, Silvi Bella. 10.05.111.000.72. Valentina's and Belle's Sexual Motives and Purposes in Evie Blake's Valentina. Thesis. English Study Program of the Faculty of Social and Cultural Sciences, University of Trunojoyo Madura. Advisors: (I) Imron Wakhid Harits, S.S., M.Pd, (II) Erika Citra Sari Hartanto, S.S., M.Hum.

This study is aimed to analyze Evie Blake's novel, entitled Valentina. Valentina and Belle are the two main characters in this novel. In their sexual activities with their partners, Valentina and Belle are driven by their own sexual motives. They also have the different purposes which they want to achieve in doing sexual activities. Concerning with this matter, this study focuses on Valentina's and Belle's sexual motives, purposes, and activities. Hence, the theory of Psychology and Literature is chosen by the writer as the underlying theory to analyze psychological aspects of the characters in this novel. The concept of sexuality is also used in analyzing sexual motives, purposes, and activities of those main characters.

Furthermore, this study uses qualitative design. Therefore, the writer involves herself in collecting and analyzing the data. The data of this a study is in form of words. Therefore, the author's narration and also the characters' utterances are used as the data to answer the statements of research problem.

The result of this study reveals that her love to her lovers, curiosity of sadomasochism, and sexual desire becomes Valentina's motives to have sexual activities. As for Belle's sexual motives are her love to Santos and her sexual desire. Meanwhile, Valentina's and Belle's purposes in doing sexual activities are to feel a sexual and an emotional satisfaction. In addition, Valentina also wants to have a baby from her lover, Theo. Hence, it is known the kinds of sexual activities which Valentina and Belle do and experience with their partners.

Keywords: Valentina, Psychology of Literature, Sexual Motives, Sexual Purposes, Sexual Activities.