

Abstract

Panggabean, Ruth Naomi. (16.05.1.1.1.00061). Betrayal in Gillian Flynn's Novel, Gone Girl : Literature and Psychology Approach. Thesis. English Study Program of the Faculty of Social and Cultural Science, University of Trunojoyo Madura. Advisor: Dr. Dra. Siti Hanifa,M.Pd.

The objectives of the study are describing the betrayal occurred in the novel entitled Gone Girl by Gillian Flynn. The discussion of betrayal is divided into three parts. Those are the types of betrayal, the causes of betrayal, and the effects of betrayal. The subjects of this research are the main characters, Nick and Amy Dunne.

Methods of data collection uses qualitative approach of characters' utterance and narrator's narration. Analysis of data uses Miles and Huberman techniques. Data validity checking techniques uses matrix of sources and methods.

The results showed the type of betrayal especially in marriage relationship, the causes main characters betray each other, and the effects of betrayal that involve many person around main characters such as made one person killed that acquired distinctive betrayal parts in Gone Girl novel. This study shows typical betrayal process occur with how huge is the effect of betrayal and the person who committed in betrayal.

Key words: Betrayal, the types of betrayal, the causes of betraying, and the effects of betrayal.