

ABSTRACT

Ervinda Yuli Rasti, Inferiority Feeling In Madurese Women Experienced Sangkal (Case Study In Pamekasan District), Thesis, Psychology of Social Science and Cultural Science Department at Trunojoyo Madura University. 2018. Front xix + 82 Page and 15 Appendixs.

This study aims to determine the description of Inferiority Feeling on Madurese women who experienced sangkal. The subjects were three Madurese women who experienced sangkal for ever refusing the first proposition or ever break an engagement relationship. Data collection method is using semi-structured interviews techniques. The sampling technique used purposive sampling. The Characteristics in this study are female gender, age 40-60 years, single, ever refusing the first proposition or have ever break an engagement relationship and believe that she was experienced sangkal. Analytical techniques used in this study are Miles & Huberman that is data reduction, data display and conclusion or verification. The results of this study is indicate that, Madurese women who experienced sangkal always inferiority feeling because the environment always talking about their unmarried status. The chatter made by the community against Madurese women who experienced Sangkal, making them unwilling to interact with others, not having close friends to share stories and all the problems faced so as to make Madurese women who experienced sangkal only in the house every day. Madurese women who experience sangkal always feel hesitant in deciding something because of their status, Madurese women who experience sangkal feel that other people better than her so that they can only feel resigned when their cant achieved their goal because of her conditions.

Keywords : Inferiority Feeling, Sangkal, Madurese women
Refrences : 35 (1980 – 2017)